a- Apportionment effective with congressional election two years after census

b- Original apportionment made in constitution, pending first census c- No apportionment was made in 1920

d- These figures are not based on any census, but indicate the provisional representation accorded newly admitted states by congress, pending the next census.

e- Twenty members were assigned to Massachusetts, but seven of these were credited to Maine when that area became a state

f- Normally 435, but temporarily increased two seats by congress when Alaska and Hawaii became states
